Excerpt: .protection may consist of automatic sprinklers located over windows or other openings. It may be a device which will send a curtain of water over an exposed wall. In general, however, the outside protection consists in placing water mains and fire plugs or hydrants in such places that they will adequately cover the entire risk. Good hose should be kept in the vicinity of all fire hydrants, enclosed in such a way that it will be safe from the weather and yet le quickly available in case of need. The watchman should be quick and intelligent. He should, on discovering a fire, immediately turn in the alarm and then try to extinguish the flame. The efficiency of the outside fire protection, aside from the automatic rlevices, depends upon three things: the water supply, the; ffectiveness of the watchman and firemen, and the efficiency of...
