Excerpt: .to breakfast even with a soiled collar, or untidy hair. A knot of bright ribbon, blue for instance, because you know it will wash, just at the join of the frill or collar, or a fresh flower, if ever so simple--a few primroses, a bunch of daisies, or a spray from any hedgerow, of which there are plenty about Oswaldtown, is a very great improvement to any woman s dress. Girls dress nicely before they become wives. It is my opinion that they should be much more particular after. If they would only watch for the pleased look on the husband s face, as a neatly dressed wife greets him on his return from business, I fancy there would be a little more taste displayed than there is. Put that down in your memory, dear. That I will, dear Lizzie. I see now why...
